Penal Code

General Revision

PART I

Application of Law

Chapter 1

Operation of Law as to Time

Article 1

The law application shall be operative at the time of committing the offence. To determine the time thereof reference shall be made to the time of the occurrence of the relevant act, regardless of the time of the realization of its result.

However, if one or more laws have been passed following the commission of the offence and before pronouncing the final judgment, the less onerous of such laws shall be applied against the accused. Furthermore, the more favourable provisions of the law shall apply if exclusion of other provision is practicable.

If another law is passed after the final judgment so as to provide that the act for which the accused has been convicted is not punishable, the enforcement of the said judgment shall be suspended and thereafter the act shall no longer be a criminal act.

However, if the law mitigates the severity of the penalty, the court passing the final judgment may invoke the provisions of the new law upon an application from the accused of the Public Prosecutor.

Article 2

If a new law is passed for a limited period incriminating a certain act or omission or providing for a harsher penalty, the expiry of such period once criminal proceedings have commenced.

Article 3

Every new law, even if it is harsher, shall be invoked prior to the effective date for every continuing and successive offence and common crime during the period of operation of the said law.

If the aforementioned law has been passed to amend provisions with respect to plurality of offences or the recurrence therefore, due regard shall be made to the offences committed and the convictions passed before the enforcement of the said law.

Article 4

If the law amends the date for implantation, the correct date shall be that which will be less onerous to the accused.

Chapter 2

Application of Law as to Time

Article 5

This Law shall apply to every offence committed within the jurisdiction of the State of Bahrain. The offence shall be deemed to have been committed within its jurisdiction if the act complained of constitutes it or if its results were attributed to the said offence or if the intent could be deduced from it.

In every case, the Law shall apply to every person participating in the crime or if his involvement in the crime occurred when he was abroad whether as a perpetrator or abettor.

Article 6

This Law shall apply to any citizen or foreigner who has committed outside the State of Bahrain any act which renders him an offender or a guilty partner in one of the crimes affecting the security of the State either at home or abroad, or those offences which are contained in Chapter 1 and 2 of Part I of Section 1 or of forging seals and public stamps or counterfeiting currency and bank notes provided for in Articles 257, 262 and 263.

Article 7

This Law applies to offences committed abroad by civil servants or persons charged with public duties whether in the exercise of their duties or in their private capacity.

Article 8

Every citizen, whilst abroad, who commits an act that renders him an offender or guilt partner according to this Law shall be punished in pursuance of its provisions when he returns to the State of Bahrain even though he is punishable under the law of the country in which he has committed the offence.

This principle of law shall be operative even if the citizen has acquired or lost his nationality after committing the offence.

Article 9

This Law shall apply to every foreigner in Bahrain who may have committed an offence abroad even though such crime is not covered under Articles 6, 7 and 8 of this Law and where application for extradition has so far not been made.

Article 10

Without prejudice to the provision regarding crime set forth in Article 6, no criminal proceedings may commence against any person who has already been acquitted by foreign law courts on a criminal charge or has been finally convicted and punished or if the offence has been barred by time.

Article 11

In the event of criminal proceeding begin instituted with respect to an offence committed abroad, the judge shall take into consideration in passing a sentence the fact of the accused having undergone punishment, even by way remand.

Article 12

Due regard shall be given to final judgments passed by foreign criminal courts of law with respect to offences considered as crimes under the terms of this Law and which have been committed abroad as follows:

1. To impose additional punishment so long as they are consistent with the provisions of this law and to comply with procedures regarding rights of rebuttal and compensation and other civil remedies.
2. To impose additional punishments set forth in this Law or to decree an order of rebuttal and compensation.
3. To apply the provisions of this Law with regard to recurrence, multiplicity of offences and order of conditional discharge.

In order to invoke a judgment passed by a foreign court, its validity shall be ascertained and shall be authenticated by the court of competent jurisdiction with regard to the kind of crime in respect of which the judgment has been passed. However, if an action, involving a foreign court judgment is brought, its authentication shall be part of the jurisdiction of the court in which the action is taken up for adjudication.

Part II

Criminal Responsibility

Chapter 1

Crimes

Article 13

Crimes are either felonies or misdemeanours.

The nature of the crime shall determine the type of punishment provided for in the Law. Even if the judge substitutes a punishment which has been prescribed for a less serious one on legal grounds or in the exercise of judicial discretion, the nature of the offence may not be altered.

Article 14

Element of intention must necessarily be present in felonies. A misdemeanour may not be classed as intentional if the law expressly provides otherwise.

Chapter 2

Plea of justification

Article 15

Nothing is an offence which is done in fulfillment of a duty required by law.

Article 16

Nothing is an offence which is done in exercise of a right justified by law or custom.

Article 17

The right of self defence commences when the following two factors are present:

1. If the person is in imminent danger of a threat to his own person or property or if he reasonably believes in the imminence of such danger.
2. If there is no time to have recourse to the protection of the public authorities.

In the latter event, the imminent danger threatened against the person or property shall be deemed to have been so even in the case of the person or property of third parties.

Article 18

In the exercise of the right of self-defence, no person may inflict more harm than is necessary for the purpose of defence.

Article 19

If any authorized officer exceeds the limit in the performance of his duties by causing a threat which entitles one to the right of self-defence, the said threat may not be repelled unless the said officer acted in bad faith or it was reasonably apprehended that the said threat would endanger one.

Article 20

Murder in self-defence or in defence of property shall not be justified except in the following cases:

1. An act from which death or serious injury is feared.
2. An act of rape, assault or attack against personal freedom.
3. An act of setting fire, causing damage or theft.
4. An act of breaking into an inhabited house or appurtenances thereof.

Article 21

By passing the extent of a justified act in good faith shall be deemed as an extenuating circumstance.

A judgment for exemption may be passed if the judge finds grounds for such exemption.

Chapter 3

Causation

Article 22

An offender shall not be punished for an offence unless it is the result of his behavior. If a premeditated offence is committed by way of abstaining from doing what the law of abstaining from doing what the law or mutual agreement stipulates, an offender shall be punished therefore as though the offence has been committed by his own act.

Article 23

Causal relationship shall not cease even if other causes have contributed with the offender's behavior in bringing about the result, even if such causes are unknown thereto, and whether they are previous, contemporary or subsequent to his behavior and whether they are dependent or independent therefrom.

However, such relationship shall cases if an unfamiliar act, that is sufficient in itself to cause the result, interferes following the act of the offender. In this case, the offender shall be punished for what he has actually committed.

Chapter 4

A guardian shall be appointed to manage the property of the said convicted person, and the procedures for his appointment and his terms of reference shall be subject to the provision applicable to distrainees.

Article 60

If a convicted person is a civil servant or an officer entrusted with a public service, his deprivation of the right to employment in the civil service shall have the consequence of dismissing him from such service.

Article 61

A judge shall, upon passing a judgment of conviction for a felony, order the deprivation of the convicted person from rights or privileges in excess of the stipulations of Article 53m for a period of at least one year and more than 10 years, commencing from the date of completing the inflicting of the penalty or elapse thereof for any other reason. If the penalty is a jail term, the adjudged deprivation shall be extended by the period to be spent by the convicted person in jail.

Article 62

Upon passing a judgment against a civil servant for imprisonment for an offence involving an offending civil servant, the judgment may provide for his removal from office for a period of at least one year and no more than 3 years.

Article 63

Where the Law provides, in cases of misdemeanours, for the civil disqualification penalty, a judge shall, in the event of conviction, order the deprivation of the convicted person of any right or privilege set forth under article 53 from the date of the judgment and for a period of no less than one year and no more than 3 years, commencing from the end of executing the penalty or elapse thereof for any other reason, unless otherwise stipulated.

The restriction contained in the preceding paragraph shall apply to the cases where the Law provides, in cases of misdemeanours, for the dismissal punishment.

Article 64

A judge may, if he hands down a judgment for an offence, order the confiscation of items seized in connection with such offence or items used or in the process of being used for the commission of the offence.

A judge shall be empowered to confiscate the aforesaid items, the manufacture of which, possession, ownership or use thereof or dealing therein constitutes an offence, even though they do not belong to the accused, or if no conviction verdict has been passed in respect of the case.

A judge shall order the confiscation of items intended as a consideration for committing an offence.

The above shall be without prejudice to the rights of bona fide third parties.

Chapter 3

Plurality of Characterizations and Plurality of Offences

Article 65

If more than one characterization applies to an occurrence, recognition shall be given, after recoding the said characterizations in the judgment, to the gravest offence for which only the penalty thereof shall be inflicted.

Article 66

Where a person commits two or more offences and if he has not been subject to a final judgment for any of the said offence, the court judgment shall set forth the penalty for each offence, and than a single penalty for all the offences, which penalty shall be for the gravest offence with due regard for aggravating circumstances. Such penalty shall be the punishment to be pronounced and executed to the exclusion of other penalties.

The provisions contained in the foregoing paragraph shall not prejudice the execution of secondary punishments prescribed for any of the penalties set forth in the judgment.

Article 67

If it appears that the convicted person had, before the judgment was handed down, committed a graver offence than the one for which he was convicted, the penalty for such offence shall be inflicted according to the requirements of the foregoing Article. In this case, the judge shall order in his judgment the extinguishment for what had been executed in the pervious judgments.

Chapter 4

Extenuating Justifications and Circumstances

Article 68

Justifications shall either be exempted from punishment or extenuating thereto. No justification shall be admitted except in the cases determined by law.

Article 69

A justification exempting from punishment shall bar a judgment inflicting an original or secondary punishment save for confiscation.

Article 70

Subject to the cases set forth in the Law, extenuating justifications shall be deemed to include the minor age of accused, who shall be more than fifteen but less than eighteen years of age, and committing the offence for honorable motives or objectives or as a consequence of serious provocation by the victim who has no legal right so to do.

Article 71

If there is an extenuating justification for an offence punishable by a death sentence, the penalty shall be reduced to a jail sentence or imprisonment for at least one year. If the penalty for such offence is life or term imprisonment it shall be reduced to the punishment for a misdemeanour unless the law otherwise provides.

Article 72

If an offence is committed under extenuating circumstances and the judge feels the need for clemency, the penalty shall be reduced. If the prescribed penalty is death sentence, it may be reduced to life or term imprisonment. Further, if the penalty is life imprisonment, it may be reduced to term imprisonment or a jail sentence for a period of less than six months. Where the penalty is a term imprisonment, the judge shall not inflict the maximum penalty but may reduce it to imprisonment for no less than 3 months.

Article 73

If a misdemeanour is committed for a certain justification, the penalty shall reduced as follows:

If the penalty has a minimum, it shall not be complied with by the judge, in determining the punishment.

If the penalty involves imprisonment and payment of a fine, the judge shall only inflict either.

If the penalty involved imprisonment for a period not limited by a special minimum, the judge may order the payment of a fine instead of the said imprisonment.

Article 74

If a misdemeanour is committed under extenuating circumstances, the judge may enforce the provisions of the foregoing Article.

Chapter 5

Aggravating Circumstances

Article 75

Subject to the cases where the law provides for special causes for aggravation, the following shall be considered as aggravating circumstances:

1. Committing an offence for contemptible motives.

If the penalty originally prescribed for the offence is a fine, its maximum shall be doubled, or alternatively a prison sentence shall be passed.

If the penalty involves imprisonment, the maximum thereof shall be doubled.

If the penalty is imprisonment for a maximum period of fifteen years, such penalty shall reach this maximum, but if the penalty is a term imprisonment, the sentence shall be life imprisonment.

Article 77

Where an offence is committed under aggravating circumstances as well as extenuating circumstances of justifications, they shall be taken into account in the following order:

- Aggravating circumstances.
- Extenuating justifications.
- Extenuating circumstances.

However, if conflicting justification and circumstances vary in the effect thereof, a judge shall, in the pursuit of justice, recognize the most effective.

Article 78

The following shall be deemed as recidivists:

First: A person who has been finally convicted for a felony, and then commits an offence.

Second: A person who has received a final sentence of imprisonment for six months or more, and then commits a misdemeanour before the elapse of five years from the date of the end of this punishment or its forfeiture by way of prescription.

Recidivison shall apply in respect combined offences in terms of deliberation and omission.

Recidivision shall be deemed as committing an offence under aggravating circumstances.

Article 79

Where recidivision was previously sentences to two penalties involving deprivation of liberty for a period of at least one year, or to three penalty involving deprivation of liberty of which one shall be for a period of at least one year or more, the theft, an act of fraud, breach of trust, forgery or concealment of items gained from such crimes, or attempting to commit them, after having been sentence to the most recent of such penalties for any of the aforesaid misdemeanours, a judge shall inflict imprisonment for a period of no more than five years instead of applying the provisions of the foregoing Article.

Article 80

A judge shall apply the provisions of the foregoing Article to a recidivist who was previously sentenced for committing any of the crimes set forth in Articles 410,411 and 412 to two penalties involving deprivation of liberty, both of which shall be for at least one year, or to three penalties involving deprivation of liberty of which one shall be at least one year or more, then committed, after having been sentenced to the most recent of such penalties, any of the misdemeanours mentioned in the preceding Articles.

Chapter 6

Stay of Execution

Article 81

Upon passing a sentence of a fine or imprisonment for a period of no more than one year, a judge may order a stay of execution if it is established from the accused's conduct, past circumstances of his crime or age that there is reason to believe that he will not commit another offence. The judgment shall show the reason for the stay of execution.

A judge shall make a stay of execution inclusive of any secondary punishment, except confiscation.

Article 82

A judge shall, in the event of a stay of execution, oblige the convicted person to pay all or part of the damages to the party affected by the offence within a period to be specified in the judgment.

Article 83

Stay of execution shall be for a period of three years from the date on which the judgment becomes final.

Article 84

A judgment may be passed for revoking a stay of execution in any of the following cases:

First: If the convicted person fails to perform his obligation set forth in Article 82.

Second: If the convicted person commits during the period of probation mentioned in the preceding Article a deliberate offence, he shall be sentenced to a penalty involving deprivation of liberty for more than two months, whether the conviction judgment has been passed during this period or thereafter, provided that the action has been brought during such period.

Third: If it appears during the period of probation the issue of a court order provided for in the foregoing Article but has not been brought to the attention of the court.

A judgment for revocation shall be passed upon an application to be filed by the Public Prosecution with the Court, which has ordered a stay of execution or before which the reason for revocation is established, without prejudice to the degree of litigation.

Article 85

A judgment for revocation shall have the effect of exempting from the penalty which has been subject to a stay of execution.

Article 86

If the period of probation expires without the fulfillment of any of the conditions for revocation of a stay of execution, the judgment shall be null and void.

Chapter 7

Mental and Psychological Illness

Article 87

If the act constituting an offence is committed by a person who is under the effect of a severe state of madness, mental or psychological disorder or impairment rendering him unable to be in full control of his action, a judge shall order that he shall be kept in a sanitarium.

Article 88

The measure provided for in the foregoing Article shall be taken in accordance with the conditions laid down by law respect of a person who suffers a severe state of insanity, mental or psychological disorder or impairment in the course of the interrogation or after the handing down of the court judgment.

Part IV

Amnesty

Article 89

Total amnesty shall be decided by law and shall have the effect of discontinuing proceedings or nullifying the conviction judgment passed in respect thereof, but it shall have no effect on penalties previously executed.

A total amnesty shall not affect third parties' rights.

Article 90

A special amnesty shall be decided by an Amiri Decree providing for extinguishing all or part of the penalty or replacing in with a less severe penalty.

Such amnesty shall not result in extinguishment of secondary penalties or other effects, unless the amnesty decree otherwise provides.

Article 91

Abolishing a penalty by a special amnesty shall be deemed equal to the execution thereof.

Part V

Provisions Relating to Offences Committed by Methods of Publication

Article 92

In pursuance of the provisions of this Law, the following shall be deemed as methods of publication:

1. Acts, gestures or movements performed or made on a public road, at a public meeting or in an open place that is accessible or kept under the sight of the public if they are performed or made so that they can be seen by whoever shall be in such places or if they are communicated thereto by any mechanical device.
2. Verbal statement or slogans if uttered or shouted at any of the aforesaid places, or if uttered or shouted so that they may be heard by persons at such places, or if broadcast by a mechanical device so that they shall be heard by persons not involved in the use of such devices.
3. Written materials, drawing, pictures, signs, films and other means of expression if they are displayed at any of the aforesaid places, or if indiscriminately distributed or sold to a number of people, or offered for sale at any place.

Article 93

Without prejudice to criminal liability towards an author or artist, who has prepared a drawing or such other methods of expression, a newspaper's editor-in-chief or editor in charge of a department involved in the publication shall be liable for punishment, unless there is an editor-in-charge regarded as the person responsible for the offences committed by his newspaper. Nevertheless, he shall not be deemed liable, if he has in the course of the preliminary investigation proved that publication has taken place without his knowledge and produced all information documents in his possession to assist in identifying the actual publisher, or to give guidance as to the offender by furnishing all details and papers to prove his liability, or to prove that he has not undertaken publication, otherwise he shall be liable to lose his position in the newspaper or to other serious damages.

Article 94

Where the written material, drawing or other method of expression used in committing the offence have been published abroad and in all cases where it is not possible to identify the offender, the importers and printers shall be punished as being offenders. Where this is not feasible. The punishment shall be inflicted on the vendors, distributors and persons involved in displaying the relevant material, unless it appears from the circumstances of the case that they were not in a position to learn the contents of the written materials, drawing or other methods of expression.

Article 95

Amiri decree No.7/1976 concerning the formation and procedures with respect to court provided for in article 185 of the penal code

We, Isa bin Salman Al Khalifa, Amir of the State of Bahrain,

After referring to Constitution,

And Amiri Decree No. 4 of 1975,

And to Article 185 of the Penal Code of 1976,

And to the code of Criminal Procedure of 1966,

And to Legislative Decree No. 13 of 1971, concerning the Organization of the Judiciary,

And upon the recommendation of the Minister of Justice and Islamic Affairs and after the approval of the Council of Ministers,

Hereby enact the following :

Article 1

The Civil High Court of Appeal, consisting of three judges, shall be the court competent to look into crimes provided for in Article 112 to 184 of the Penal Code of 1976 as per Article 185 of the said Code. In case the quorum required for the sitting of the court is less than three, the Minister of Justice and Islamic Affairs shall appoint one of the judges of the judges of the High Civil Court to maintain the quorum.

Article 2

A criminal case shall be filed in court on an indictment signed by a member of the public prosecution in court.

Article 3

The court shall hold its sittings at the premises of the Directorate of Courts at the Ministry of Justice and Islamic Affairs.

It may seek the assistance of the staff and employees of the said Ministry.

The court may, with the approval of the Minister of Justice and Islamic Affairs, hold its sitting in premises other than the offices of the Directorate of Courts.

Article 4

Notwithstanding the provisions laid down in this Decree regarding procedure, the court shall apply the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure of 1996 or any other law enacted in its place, during the course of a trial.

Article 5

In the course of trial, the court shall be guided by the following:

Firstly: In the absence of the accused, the court shall examine the case to satisfy itself that proper notice has been served on the accused as per the Code Criminal Procedure or by way of publication.

Secondly: A lawyer shall represent in court an accused who is charged with the commission of an offence. If the accused had not retained a lawyer, the court may offer the service of one to him at the expense of the State which expense shall be recovered from the accused, if he is a person of means.

An accused, charged with the offence of misdemeanor, has the right to be defended by a lawyer.

A lawyer shall not defend an accused in court if the accused is absent. An accused may set up his defence by oral or written testimony.

Thirdly: The public prosecutor shall prepare a case brief to be made available to the President of the Court and the other judges and the accused and their lawyers, well in time, before the very first sitting of the court. The case brief shall contain the reports of the police and the public prosecutor and the investigations thereunder, along with the statements of the accused made to the investigating judge, also the defence of the accused and any other evidence, in the opinion of the public prosecutor, shall be included in the case brief whether such evidence has been collected by the public prosecutor before the trial or during the trial, until the case is concluded.

The accused and his lawyers shall always have the right to go through the statements and notes of investigation and any other documents or evidences which the public prosecutor presented. They shall also have the right to request the court to include any other documents in the case brief.

Fourthly: The court shall try the cases expeditiously and its sitting shall be held in public unless the court is of the opinion that in the supreme interest of the peace and security of the State, the sitting should be held in camera. In such an eventuality, the accused or his lawyers shall not be shut out from the session of the court.

The court shall deliver its verdict at a public sitting.

Fifthly: The confession of the accused, whether made against himself or against other co-accused, shall be weighed with care by court and whether the said confession was made to the investigating judge or in court during trial or was made only in the course of the investigation by the public prosecutor or in the statement to the public prosecutor or the police.

The court may act on this confession for its judgment.

However, the provisions contained in this paragraph shall not apply to crimes punishable with death and the confession of the accused alone shall not avail against such crimes unless it has been made in court or before the investigating judge.

Sixthly: the court may, for the purposes of its judgment, act on the statement of witnesses even if they were made to the police or the public prosecutor or in the course of the investigation by the public prosecutor, because of the difficulty of hearing the witness evidence in court due to the impracticability of securing their attendance or when the court wishes to satisfy itself with regard to statements made during investigation mentioned above or for any other reasons appreciated by the court.

The court may rely for its judgment on any other evidence if it appears only in the police statements or in the statement to the public prosecutor or in the course of the investigation by the public prosecutor.

Seventhly: Civil claims shall not be entertained in court. Any such claims may be filed in the appropriate courts.

Article 6

If the accused appears, after judgment has been passed against him in his absence, the said judgment shall be ineffectual and the accused shall be deemed to have been arrested and the trial shall be reopened expeditiously.

The court may decide to release him temporarily and his place of confinement may also be decided for the period of the trial.

Article 7

A verdict passed by the court shall be final and shall not, in any manner, be challenged, unless the said verdict has been passed in the absence of the accused, in which event, the procedure stated in the foregoing article shall apply.

Article 8

The Minister of Justice and Islamic Affairs and the Minister of Interior, each in his respective capacity, shall implement this Decree and it shall be effective from date of its publication in the Official Gazette.
